The Palm Springs City Council is inviting the entire community to attend a special Council Study Session meeting on the Revised Specific Plan for the Downtown Revitalization Project on Wednesday, Jan. 6. The Council will further review the plan, proposed changes and take input from the community.

The 5 p.m. Study Session, was originally to be held at City Hall, but has now been moved to the Palm Springs Convention Center, 277 N. Avenida Caballeros.

“We understand that many residents and stakeholders have an intense interest in the future of our city and the Downtown Revitalization Project,” said Mayor Robert Moon. “We are moving the Study Session to the Convention Center so that more people can attend and not have to deal with standing room only in the Council Chamber. It is important that everyone have an opportunity to learn more about the revised plan and provide public comment.”

In addition, an official public hearing for the Revised Specific Plan is slated for the next regularly scheduled City Council meeting on Wednesday, Jan. 13.
