COMMUNITY ALERT:
Slurry Sealing Begins Today for Indian Canyon Two-Way Traffic
Conversion Project: Merchants Remain Open for Business

Dec. 16, 2019

Major slurry seal work began today for the much-anticipated Indian Canyon Two-Way Conversion project in downtown Palm Springs.

The project converts Indian Canyon Drive from Alejo south to Camino Parocela from four, one-way northbound lanes to two-way northbound and southbound lanes. The contractor is applying a slurry seal (a thin layer of asphalt pavement) to the surface of the street.

During the work, limited access will be available to/from driveways along Indian Canyon Drive until the pavement is dry. The contractor will have a portion of the driveway open to connect to an area on Indian Canyon where residents and visitors can drive to access businesses. In addition, the contractor will be paving by lanes (outside, then inside or vice versa) to assist with traffic flow and access to driveways. Due to the narrowed access at driveways while the paving is underway, drivers should allow for extra time to get to and from these parking lots.

The City offers free parking at a number of lots and locations downtown. This includes over 300 spaces at the parking structure on Baristo Road, and 1,000 spaces at the Downtown Parking Garage. Entrances to the garage are located at the Hyatt Hotel on North Palm Canyon Drive and Amado Road, and two entrances on North Museum Drive in front of the Palm Springs Art Museum.

The project is expected to be completed in January of 2020.
